Giancarlo Fisichella is to make his first public appearance as a Ferrari driver at a road safety promotional event at Vallelunga near Rome on Tuesday.

Paddock insight from group F1 editor Jonathan Noble

The Italian, who will drive for Ferrari until the end of the season, will join Michael Schumacher, Heikki Kovalainen, Robert Kubica, and Timo Glock at the eSafety Challenge event.

- End of day at Monza. Great race, intriguing title fight prospects now - and lots more work tomorrow. about 22 hours ago
- Lewis Hamilton crashed on the final lap while pushing hard in third place 1 day ago

"I am very happy to support this important road safety initiative as one of my first official duties for Ferrari," said Fisichella.
